Computer Science Undergraduate

About Me I am a second-year undergraduate at the University of Vermont, with a passions for Computer Science, Computational Neuroscience, and Mathematics.

In my free time, I like Sailing in the Bay Area, working with robotics, and documenting my life through obsessive note-taking.

Education

2023 - present, University of Vermont

BS in Computer Science

Experience

May 2024 - May 2024, Summer Volunteer/Assistant Judge, URC 2024

- Mars Rover Competition aimed at college students. More on my Quartz Garden(<https://gassandrid.xyz/Thoughts/URC-2024>)
- Worked with teams of students solving real challenges of harsh environments
 - Difficulties with autonomy, gathering data, etc

Communication/Working Skills

Documentation/Typesetting, Markdown/LaTeX

I became proficient at writing academic documents for my university/self-learning notes, but also writing "linked" markdown-based graph databases.

Data Visualization/Communcation, Matplotlib and R

I love working with data for my own documentation/hobbies and have gotten good at communicating important data features through visualizations.

Typing

Competitive Typing is a hobby of mine, and I am now at a level where I can type and navigate my computer at a very high level.

Software Development Skills

Personal Projects

Quartz Garden, Knowledge Management System

A collection of "atomic" notes and ideas that link to one another, where organization emerges similar to how a brain might store information.

Homelab, Machine Learning Workhorse and self-hosted Cloud

6 Old Laptops, a Mini PC, and two Raspberry Pi's are clustered together under a Hypervisor Proxmox where they share/divide resources for my containerized services; LLM inference/development, CI/CD deployment for my websites, and cloud/database for my microcontrollers.
